

11114NAT Diploma of Islamic Studies

The 11114NAT Diploma of Islamic Studies is a nationally accredited course designed to provide a pathway for participants to deepen their understanding of Islamic theology and to perform support functions associated with serving in an Islamic congregation. Training is primarily conducted face-to-face in a classroom-based environment (theoretical) and an Islamic worship setting (practical).

Training sessions are trainer led in group sizes of no more than 30 participants. This resulting in a minimum student/trainer ratio of 1:30 for theoretical and practical training.

In addition to face-to-face learning, students will also complete self-paced study (approximately 6 hours per week) to assist them in building their knowledge and undertake work toward their assignments.

Students will typically attend formal training sessions two days per week. Each day has scheduled training over 7 hours resulting in 14 contact hours per week.

Assessment Requirements

The assessment is conducted using a combination of realistic tasks, projects, written responses, response to case studies and journal evidence. The following provides a brief explanation of the assessment methods that are to be applied:

- Observation. The learner is required to demonstrate a range of skills and applied knowledge whilst being observed by the assessor. These tasks typically involve the learner demonstrating their skills in meeting client needs. These tasks will generally involve a discussion between the learner and the assessor immediately after the demonstration to gather further evidence of competency through verbal questioning, posing 'what if' scenarios. Observation assessment will typically be conducted in a simulated workplace. The observation assessment will be conducted by a qualified assessor.
- Journal Evidence. The learner is required to complete a journal for each of the units of competency based on completed activities which reflect requirements of the unit of competency. A journal is suitable for performance evidence and belief-based tasks where evidence gathered solely from knowledge-based questions will not be sufficient enough to deem the learner competent. An example of this may include acknowledging a certain belief, where a written response activity will not be sufficient enough to showcase that the learner has acknowledged the belief. Learners are reminded to retain a copy of their own work before submission. The assessor will review the submitted journal against the requirements of the unit of competency to conduct the assessment.

- Written Response. The learner is required to respond to a range of questions and/or case study activities. The learner will research their answers from the issued learning material and other references. Some of these tasks may require the learner to provide a response in the context of their experience on work placement. A written response will relate directly to the required knowledge evidence in the units of competency and aims to collect both the valid and sufficient evidence of the candidate's knowledge. The assessor will review the learner's submitted report and using assessment benchmarks will review this work and provide feedback to the learner. The learner is expected to provide a satisfactory response for all questions and case study activities.
- Role Play Observation. The learner is required to participate in various role-plays which are conducted according to specific scenarios in an Islamic worship setting or environment. The learner and others participating in the role-play will be briefed prior to each activity. Role-plays are used to collect evidence of the candidate's ability to perform tasks and interact with others in situations where observation in the actual setting is not practical. This is particularly relevant to situations involving contingency based scenarios such as legal and ethical dilemmas, workplace safety, infection control, loss and grief or behaviour of concern. The assessor will observe the learner during these role-plays to assess their abilities and applied knowledge.
- Supervisor Feedback. The learner will be supervised by designated supervisors during some of their training and assessments. The supervisor will observe the candidate's during their assigned task and take note of the candidate's performance. Feedback from supervisors is gathered directly by assessors. This is achieved by the assessor undertaking an informal interview with supervisors about a particular student's performance based on defined criteria.

Dress and Equipment Requirements

Students are required to present to class in neat, casual attire suitable for participation in practical activities. Specific clothing requirements for practical placement will be discussed during Day 1 Induction; however, at a minimum student will require plain black pants (knee length shorts are acceptable – track pants or leggings are prohibited) and suitable closed toe shoes.

Students will require basic stationary and a notebook according to their own study preferences during classroom learning sessions and their own self-paced study. Access to a computer which has an internet connection is recommended to assist students to undertake study and research in response to some assessment tasks.

Students may bring portable electronic devices to classroom sessions such as small laptops or tablets if they wish. Students are advised that no provision will be made to charge these devices in the classroom and charging or power extension leads are not to be used in the classroom. Students are issued with relevant handouts to assist with their study.
